The Answer To 'WHY?'

Even now, five years after the first Sputnik, occasional voices are still heard questioning the "why" of this nation's space effort.

"Why spend such vast sums," the questions usually run, "on a prestige race to the moon when poverty and disease still shackle millions right here on this planet?"

Indeed, even the most space-minded must wince when a rocket-satellite combination costing a total of about $18 million drops in the drink off Cape Canaveral because a hyphen was left out of its coded instructions.

Think of the thousands who could have been helped by some of that money—the unemployed, the medical researchers, the hard-pressed cities trying to rebuild their slum-ridden cores.

The annual budget for space, which was under $1 billion at the time of Sputnik, is now in the multimillion-dollar range and will be second only to that for national defense in a few years.

Think of the things the nation could buy with that—the highways, the new cities—say the critics.

Yet, what if the space program were halted or cut back drastically right now? Would all this suddenly available money be spent on domestic improvement?

It could, certainly—for a while. But one thing is overlooked in this otherwise admirable idea. That is, that the money being spent on space is not only being drawn from the national economy but in turn contributes to the very dynamism and productivity of the nation.

There were many more millions unemployed in the 1930s, more millions in want, living substandard lives in substandard environments. Not one cent was being spent on space at that time, yet there was little money available for medical research, slum rebuilding or anything else.

The government, of course, spent millions on depression measures. This money, too, was drawn from the national economy, but it was an economy that was almost standing still, and the spending treated only the symptoms of the depression, not its causes.

Tragically, it took World War II to revivify the economy. Even though the humming factories were devoted to producing materials destined only for destruction, the nation regained its economic strength and has increased it ever since.

Today, production of military goods is still an important factor in the economy. But military spending, for all its billions, only amounts to about 10 per cent of the gross national product.

Should the day ever come when real peace breaks out, the nation will not collapse because it no longer has the support of defense spending. One reason it won't is the growing importance of the space budget.

Some persons have expressed hope that space exploration may provide a moral equivalent for war. It may also provide a financial equivalent.

Those who want more money spent on earthly, human needs will get their money. They will get it from the surplus wealth generated by a nation busily striving toward an important national goal—the conquest of space—whose rewards are not only an array of scientific (and new industry-creating) advances but an enlargement of the human spirit itself.

Look Who Mouths Castro Inanities

By PETER EDSON
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Castro Cuba is now trying to make a big propaganda build-up on American citizens who have left the U.S. to co-operate with the Communist revolution. But a run-down on records of 11 known U.S. collaborators with the Castro regime reveals a sorry cast of characters with amazing backgrounds.

Most recent to be granted political asylum in Cuba is Richard Cooper Bourret, 33, a Richmond, Va., graduate of University of Miami in Florida. He was last employed as a physicist by Hughes Aircraft in Malibu, Calif. He is married to Gladys Guivera Bourret, who was born in Cuba.

Bourret was rejected for U.S. military service in 1951 because of a long psychiatric history. His application for a passport to go to Cuba was rejected last year, but he became associated with the Fair Play for Cuba front and somehow got to Cuba where he said he could express himself more freely and where there was not so much military work in progress.

Inauguration of a "Free Dixie" program in English, beamed at American Negroes from Havana's Radio Progreso, apparently is using some of the defectors as commentators, though only a few are introduced by name.

One previously identified announcer is Robert Franklin Williams, 37, an avowed admirer of Fidel Castro. He formed a rifle club in his home town of Monroe, N.C., as part of an "armament race with the white people."

A year ago Williams was charged by the FBI with unlawful interstate flight to avoid prosecution for kidnapping a Marshallville, N.C., man and wife at gun point during a racial disturbance. He fled to Cuba and his recorded broadcasts from there take the line that the U.S. is a nation devoted to racial brutality and white supremacy.

Robert Bruce Taber, 43, born in New York City, was paroled from Ohio State Penitentiary in 1939 after serving 10 years of a 30-year sentence for robbery, kidnapping and operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent.

He was a Columbia Broadcasting System newsmen in Cuba during the early days of the Castro revolution and was one of the organizers of the pro-Castro Fair Play for Cuba Committee. He renounced U.S. citizenship to work for the Cuban government.

Joseph Parker Murray, U.S. Naval Academy and Harvard Law School graduate, left a University of California teaching position in 1961 to go to Cuba on a year's fellowship grant as a professor of social sciences for Havana University.

In an article written for the Communist-controlled "New World Review" last July, Murray declared that the Soviet Union and nonaligned nations must force disarmament on the western imperialists who were profiteering on the arms race.

Joseph North, Russian-born correspondent of "The Worker," was denied a U.S. passport in 1951 as a member of a Communist action organization. Since his arrival in Cuba he has filed numerous dispatches to "The Worker" praising Castro.

Four of the defectors are women. Irah Mae Warner, 30, born in Spearfish, S. Dak., and Martha McCurdy, 29, born in Harding, Ill., shared a room in Miami, Fla., before going to Cuba in 1959. Since then they have been reported teaching and nursing in Cuba and sending pro-Castro letters and literature back to the U.S.

Mrs. Barbara Ines Corrao Collins, 22, daughter of a Methodist minister, was reported by Havana "Prensa Libre" to have been granted asylum in Cuba last year. She has broadcast commentaries on the Cuban revolution over Radio Havana to gain support for the Castro revolution in the United States. Her broadcasts "Axis Sally"-type programs as "Beardless Barbara."

Gloria Ann Gerhardt left New York in June 1961 after establishing a police record for undesirable conduct on loose morals charges. She is quoted in the pro-Castro Spanish language Bohemia magazine as having declared that "the only way the United States can change is through a revolution like the Cuban revolution . . . That is our hope."

Two of the American defectors to Cuba are Puerto Ricans. Juan Juarez left the island in 1936 to travel through Latin America seeking support for Puerto Rican "liberation and nationalism." He was declared a "citizen of Cuba by decree" in 1961 and re-entered the U.S. as a counselor of the Cuban mission to the United Nations. He now represents Cuba on the U.N. Trusteeship Council, where his specialty is denouncing U.S. rule in Puerto Rico.

Jose Santiago came to the U.S. in 1926. For a time he was employed as a diamond cutter in New York, teaching Puerto Rican nationalism at the Jefferson School of Social Science on the side. He left the U.S. for Cuba in 1959 and is now an official of the Puerto Rican National Front, a Castro organization which demands independence for Puerto Rico.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hayley Mills had her first date at the age of 3½. Laurence Olivier took her to a movie studio.

Hayley's dating slacked off after that. But now she is 16 and like all 16-year-old girls, she has more than a passing interest in boys.

"But I'm not utterly desperate about dates," she says. "I don't mind if I'm boy-less on a Friday night. I'm perfectly happy to go out with my parents. They're fun, too."

In that regard she may differ from other girls of 16, who as a class are inclined to consider their parents square. True, Hayley has unusual parents, British film star John Mills and his authoress wife, Mary Hayley Bell. They have done a good job of keeping their daughter fresh and unspooled despite her international fame.

Hayley's achievement is remarkable. She is unmistakably English, yet she has been adopted by American teen-agers as their favorite young actress. The Disney films "Pollyanna" and especially "Parent Trap" established her in the top rank.

She is now finishing up "Summer Magic," a modernized "Mother Carey's Chickens."

She paused on a work day to talk about dating, as practiced in England and America.

"It's a bit more casual here," she remarked. "In England we don't have the facilities you have here—the beach, driven restaurants and so forth. A date generally means going to the theater and then returning to someone's house for a group party. Dating is done more in groups over there; it's not so much of a pairing off."

"Everything is much more casual here. I like it, although sometimes I think the dress can be a bit too casual. I see girls out in public with curlers in their hair, and I think that looks dreadful."

Polly's Pointers

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Being a busy mother of five, I found it took too much time to iron sheets, towels, etc. I do like them to look pressed, so now I fold the towels and place them on a chair and sit on them while I do the rest of the folding. I change from towels to sheets and they all look pressed. I am saved time and rest a bit, too. —LAZY

DEAR POLLY—I keep a medium-sized Turkish towel—an older one—hanging inside the shower curtain in our bathroom. I clip it on to one of those colored plastic clip clothes pins that can hang on a rod. After showering and while still standing in the tub, each member of the family wipes off the tub walls with the towel. The towel's never used to have a special washing so I am saved a lot of work. —M. C.

DEAR POLLY—What a smart gal! Her family does one job for her in a painless way. —POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Place mats with sponge backing are quickly dried, after washing, if you place them between Turkish towels and so over them several times with the rolling pin. Excess water is quickly absorbed and the mats are soon ready for use. —MRS.

DEAR POLLY—Here is one for kids who fuss about drinking fruit juices. Make popsicles with any kind of fruit juice. Then they get their vitamins with pleasure. Sometimes I add a teaspoon of sugar. Prune juice pops are delicious, do give them a try. —RONNIE

DEAR POLLY—When I know grandchildren are coming to visit, I start saving enough copies of this newspaper to fold and stack, wrap neatly in brown laundry paper and tie. Then I write the name of the child coming on each one. The two-year-old may need a stack four to five inches high measuring about eleven by seven inches so that his feet may rest on the chair seat in front of the stack. You see, these little do away with the need for borrowing or renting high chairs. A four-year-old may need only a two-inch elevation with the stack covering the entire chair seat so he CAN NOT put his feet on it. After milk or cereal is spilled, throw away the wet sack and make a new one. When the potty of little feet departs, throw them all away. —GRANDMOTHER

Reasons Why Mineral Oil Is Not a Safe Laxative

By Wayne G. Brandstad, M. D.
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Some people reach for mineral oil when they think they need a laxative. Others put it in a frying pan for cooking. I would not advise you to use it either way.

My objections are based on the fact that mineral oil is indigestible and passes through the digestive tract unchanged. Advertisers admit this and present it as an advantage but there is a joker in the pack.

Being an indigestible oil, it coats over the finely divided food particles in the upper digestive tract and thereby allows them to pass through the body undigested or partially digested. Such an interference with digestion is indigestion whether it produces all the usual symptoms associated with indigestion or not.

In addition to robbing the body of essential nutrients, mineral oil allows food particles to be swept undigested from the upper digestive tract, where a normal breaking down of complex chemicals into simpler compounds should take place, into the lower bowel or colon where they are met by fermentative organisms. These otherwise harmless germs attack the undigested food and produce gas and other irritating by-products. When this occurs from whatever cause over a period of several months or years the condition known as irritable bowel or mucous colitis is almost sure to result.

Another disadvantage of the use of mineral oil as a laxative is that it is bland in name only is that the dosage is hard to regulate and when taken in even slightly excessive amounts a very troublesome leakage of oil through the rectum is likely to occur.

You can now appreciate why I would discourage the use of mineral oil in salad dressing and in frying. It is true that the calories in mineral oil, since they are not absorbed into the blood, do not add to a person's weight, but the fact that the oil interferes with normal digestion as I have indicated applies to this use of mineral oil as well as to its use as a laxative. There are better ways to combat constipation and overweight than by the use of this oil.

Q — Could the use of mineral oil every day cause cancer?

A — This is a distinct possibility. Much depends on whether the mineral oil is derived from coal tar, shale or petroleum. The mineral oil obtained from petroleum is less likely to cause cancer than that obtained from coal tar or shale. The process used in producing the mineral oil is also important. The refining process known as cracking increases the likelihood of cancer formation. When mineral oil is used by the average person it does not know either its source or how it was produced.

The Mature Parent

Steps Out of Grief

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Dear Mrs. Lawrence: As a widow who recently lost a beloved husband after 35 years of marriage, I want to thank you for what you wrote about not trying to "understand" death. Now I need your help with a problem that is distressing my children: my feeling that taking any pleasure is disloyal to my husband who cannot share it with me. If I visit my children or an old friend, I come home so sick with grief over his absence that I am afraid to try to enjoy anything.

ANSWER: You're struggling. It's going to be all right.

Now, for your sake, let's struggle a little bit harder. Let's look straight at the possibility that your fear of pleasure is not "loyalty" to your dead husband but just another form of grief's angry protest at his removal from you. It's a natural protest so right and natural that we don't have to glorify it into "loyalty" or "love." Let's just let it be what it is.

If we do, we can take the next step out of grief. We can begin to see that your angry protest contains depreciation of yourself, a belittling of any happiness you can make for yourself on your own without your husband. The joy he helped you create was the best joy, and so you will have no lesser one. I'm saying that the angry protest of grief can turn us into a sulky child who refuses to eat any of the good food placed before her because it isn't the best food.

You see, you've had the supreme companionship for 35 years. Your taste for love's most satisfying gifts has been indulged for a long time. Of course, the company of your children and friends cannot provide what your husband's did, but it offers some nourishment to you just as the child's stewed prunes offers her food value that is not contained in coconut pie.

Gratitude for your children and friends will gradually become available to you as you stop comparing the happiness they can give you with the kind your husband gave you.

If you insist on idealizing your resistance to the un-supreme, inferior pleasures they offer you as "loyalty" to the best joy, you will not be able to appreciate what they are trying to give you.

There are seven times when you always should drive safely—Sunday through Saturday.

The average woman is said to like to go to lectures more than the average man. Maybe he gets his at home.

When you have the supreme companionship for 35 years, your taste for love's most satisfying gifts has been indulged for a long time. Of course, the company of your children and

Take It From Ann

Can't Remember Friend When She Did Not Have Cast, Crutches Or Bandages

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Why do some people attract calamity? Is it just rotten luck or what?

A friend of mine broke her leg for the second time in 16 months. (Same leg.) Since I've known her she has never been without a cast, crutches, or bandages. She has cut herself on broken glass, banged her head against open cupboards (concussion resulted), burned herself on the stove, and fallen in the bathtub.

No one can persuade me that people do these things intentionally. After all, who wants pain and doctor bills? Is there some explanation for this? —NO SABBATHS

Dear No Sabbaths: We all know at least one "Hard Luck Hannah." My father used to say, "If it is raining soap, she'd have a fort."

Misfortune, indeed, does seem to do certain people. These individuals are accident prone. They subconsciously want to hurt themselves. The pain they suffer assuages the guilt for "sin"—real or imagined. And often they enjoy the extra attention from family and friends.

So, in a very real sense these people have accidents on purpose, but of course you'd have a tough time persuading "them" that this is the case.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the hostess who was annoyed because a certain couple always brought their 24-year-old daughter to parties which were supposed to be strictly for married couples. I am scared to death I'll be in the same boat. I am 16 and my parents insist on dragging me everywhere with them. When I was a child I enjoyed it, but now I wish they'd leave me alone.

The other evening I was all set to go to my girl friend's house. She had baked a cake and five of us girls were going to have a hen-party. My mother told me after supper that she and dad were going to my aunt's and I had to go, too. This aunt is a pill. She has no children and I have no one to talk to there. I'm always bored stiff.

Do you feel a girl should be dragged everywhere with parents—against her will? —BABY BETSY

Dear Betsy: I do not. Teen-agers should be encouraged to develop their own interests and have their own friends.

If your parents ask you to attend certain family functions I feel you should go. But they should not insist that you pass up an evening with your friends to accompany them to your aunt's home where you'll have nothing to do but twiddle your thumbs.

Dear Ann Landers: A problem has been causing me severe mental strain. I hope you can help. My daughter married last year. The marriage lasted five months. The fellow was in the service. At the time of the divorce the judge told my daughter she would no longer be entitled to the army allotment check which wives get. She said she was aware of this. For some unknown reason the checks were never stopped. I've warned her that she may get into serious trouble with the law if she continues to cash these checks. I've even considered writing to the U. S. Army and advising them of the divorce and signing her name to the letter.

Please tell me if my daughter is doing something illegal. Perhaps your answer will scare some sense into her head. —MRS. R.

Dear Mrs. R.: If your daughter won't listen to you maybe she'll listen to the chief of Advisory Services of the Fifth Army Headquarters. He says your daughter is guilty of fraud and she is liable for the full amount.

Her best bet is to write to the office which has been issuing these checks. She should tell them exactly what she has been doing and for how long. If she turns herself in they may give her a break and permit her to make the repayments on an installment basis.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for "Ann Landers" booklet, "Before You Marry—Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Those who are happy themselves, psychologists have found, are best at judging correctly the qualities of others. The unhappy man tends to see his own faults in the other fellow.

Women, generally, are also better than men at sizing up other people. Exception: Love blinds them to what's wrong in their own husbands.

Later Than You Think?

By RUTH MILLETT.
Middle age is said to begin at age 36 and to end at age 60. The figures are arbitrary. You're actually middle-aged when—

The young think you are old and the old regard you as still young.

You carry on a conversation with your dance partner.

Sales clerks try to sell you clothes by calling them "youthful" and you are still young enough to resent the implication that you need "youthful" looking clothes.

Your eye is caught by articles on retirement but you never read them through, because you find them depressing.

In your thoughts or in conversation you sometimes use the phrase "If I had my life to live over . . ."

You frequently spend a whole evening watching television because you find it "relaxing."

You loathe the term "middle-aged."

You don't think people should be forced to retire at 65.

You frequently point out, as you lean back in your easy chair, how much better you can see the plays when you watch a football game on television than when you sit in the stadium.

You know the number of calories in all your favorite foods.

Food Poster Contest Winners
Mrs. Robert Worrell, chairman of the Scott County Farm Bureau women's committee, and the head of the IAA county food poster contest for this year has announced the selections of poster contest winners.

Top winner this year in Scott county, and also for the second straight year, is Michael Mikus, 11 years of age, a student at the Alsey grade school and the son of Mrs. Lucy Mikus of Alsey.

He will receive an engraved plaque and his poster will be sent to the Illinois Agricultural Association in Bloomington to compete with other county winners in this district.

Two persons in the county, both from the Winchester grade school, received plaques and they were Becky Wisdom and Sherri Saffer.

Several received blue ribbons in the different age groups. Candidates Address League Audience At YMCA Thursday Night

Candidates from both political parties spoke before an audience at the YMCA Thursday evening upon invitation of the League of Women Voters. Although a small crowd, most of those present seemed interested throughout the two-hour presentation.

Mrs. E. G. Pigott, voter service chairman, presided at the meeting and time to each candidate was on the honor system.

Judicial Amendment
Dr. Roy McClintock spoke on behalf of the proposed judicial amendment at the beginning of the meeting. He urged passage of the blue ballot concerning the issue in an effort to reform the court system in Illinois.

Congressman Peter Mack said he flew to Jacksonville from Quincy specifically for the League meeting. He then urged a series of 14 debates between himself and Congressman Paul Findley on the court house steps of each county in the new 20th District. He said the idea was originated by him some time ago and announced in a public telegram to Findley earlier this week. Mack said the proposed series of debates would be good for the people, although they should not use a debate as the sole means of selecting a candidate.

Mack lashed Findley's voting record as one of a conservative and isolationist in world matters as well as domestic issues. He concluded that he had supported President Eisenhower on foreign policy about the same as he had President Kennedy. "Even the farm mess can be solved if we work together."

Attorney Albert Hall represented Congressman Paul Findley at the meeting. Mr. Hall is a former State's Attorney in Morgan county and was a candidate for Congress in the primary election two years ago.

Mr. Hall read a text compiled by Congressman Findley who was unable to be present for the meeting. Half-way through the text, Congressman Mack and four campaign workers announced to the chairman that a previous engagement had been made and that he would not be available for questions at the conclusion of the meeting.

Candidates for State Representative were not invited to speak since they had an opportunity to speak at the same type of meeting last Spring.

County Candidates
County candidates for both parties were on hand at the last portion of the meeting and were introduced according to their position on the ballot.

Judge John B. Wright, Republican, spoke concerning the improvements concerning the term of office. Judge Wright is not opposed for re-election.

Bessie C. Brohan, Democrat, for county clerk, spoke concerning her qualifications for the office. She has been a resident of Jacksonville 20 years and is presently employed in the business office at Jacksonville State Hospital.

Louise Coop, Republican county clerk, described the many functions of her office. Mrs. Coop has held the office for the past four years. She pledged to continue service to all people in the county.

William L. Gross, Democrat candidate for treasurer, spoke concerning his qualifications for the office. He is presently in the insurance business.

Mrs. Helen Mayberry, Republican candidate for treasurer, explained some of the duties for which the treasurer is responsible and other qualifications for the office. She is presently deputy county clerk.

Alvin Middendorf, Democrat candidate for sheriff, said he would serve the office in a businesslike and dignified manner if elected and asked for support on November 6. Mr. Middendorf is in the auctioneering business.

Harold E. Wright, Republican candidate for sheriff, explained his qualifications and promised to devote full time to the office if elected. Mr. Wright is completing ten years as a deputy sheriff and told of some of the duties involved as sheriff.

The Democrat candidate for county commissioner was not present for the meeting. Republican Chester Thomason explained that the county board has accomplished a number of changes at the court house without increasing taxes. Mr. Thomason is completing a three-year term in the office.

The meeting was quickly concluded. Approximately 75 persons were present for the opening of the meeting with candidates and their wives representing about 25 of the total figure.

Kerner Undecided On New Central Ill. Expressway

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The idea of two new toll roads in northern Illinois was introduced Thursday at a meeting of the state Toll Highway Commission.

Gov. Otto Kerner's Division of Highways and the communities affected must approve before the commission undertakes feasibility studies.

Kerner said at the meeting he was not yet acquainted with all the facts.

He also disclosed he has on desk a report that a study of the need for a proposed state-financed expressway from Quincy to Champaign would cost nearly $200,000, mostly in federal funds. He said he had not decided whether to approve.

The proposed route of the expressway would pass near Jacksonville.

Charles M. Burgess, commission chairman, said the proposed Chicago area tollway would loop through the Fox River Valley from Waukegan to Gages Lake, curve south past Elgin and Aurora and connect with U.S. 66 near Joliet. It would be called "The Rainbow."

The northern route would extend from the western end of the East-West Tollway at Aurora to the Mississippi River at Fulton, Ill. It would nearly parallel Interstate U.S. 30 and would be called "The Lincoln Tollway."

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Almost every frightening step of childhood is marked by a singular emblem of trust. A child's trembling fingers grope upward. A parent's warm grasp is felt. And youth steps forward into new paths, fear melting into confidence.

God must count on parental hands to lead His little ones to Him. For religious training is part of the vast unknown until Mother and Dad begin to lead their child each week to Church.

Yes! God counts heavily on our hands. There is no one else into whose palm our child's fingers slip so readily. No others can teach the early lessons of faith and prayer so simply, nor illustrate them so vividly at home.

Indeed, that loving hand of trust which leads a child to Church seems in turn to be clasped by the hand of God.

Morgan-Scott Teachers Get 'The Business' On B-E Day Held In City

When is a teacher not a teacher? When they are participating in Business-Education Day.

Four hundred and seventy-seven teachers from Morgan and Scott counties left the halls of learning Thursday and toured thirty-three Jacksonville businesses and industries enabling them to gain first-hand knowledge of how the local business community operates.

The Thursday tour, held in cooperation with the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce, was the opening of a two-day teachers institute that ended Friday.

For some it was a day-off from the daily routine of the three Rs, for others, valuable knowledge was absorbed on how the various products made in the city are manufactured, processed, marketed and transported until they reach the consumer.

During the afternoon tours thru the local establishments, the groups were broken down into small groups of ten and twelve and given a personally guided tour thru the plants and stores by representatives of those firms.

At each stop along the route, the guide stopped and the group closed in, while the various steps in the facilities of the business were explained.

Cooperating business houses were A. G. Edwards, Anderson-Clayton, City Water & Power, Eli Bridge, Elliott State Bank and Trust, Farmers State Bank and Trust, General Telephone, Gustine Furniture, Hertzberg-New Method Book Bindery, Ideal Baking, Illinois College, Illinois Power, Jacksonville Foods Store, Jacksonville Journal-Courier, Jacksonville Memorial Lawn cemetery, Jacksonville Savings & Loan, Kline's Department store, Kordite Corporation, Lincoln-Douglas Savings & Loan and Lindy Advertising.

Others were MacMurray College, Mid-State Photo Lab, Montgomery Ward, New Method Book Bindery, Inc., Our Saviour's hospital, J. C. Penny, Sears and Roebuck, Thrift Travel Service, Vogue Fabrics, WJIL, WLDS, Walker Motor and Woolworth's.

Friday the South Central Division of the Illinois Education association held its annual meeting at the Illinois State Army building in Springfield.

The meeting featured Nita Maglioff, heroine of the best-seller, "Nita."

Dr. John H. Furby, professional lecturer, was the second speaker of the day. His subject was "Education and the Four Dreams of Man."

The Artless Heiress

THE STORY: In the hotel which she inherited, Columbine Druggel discovers that she has gotten the wrong baggage by mistake. In her bag are a number of unusual items, including a gun and a bag full of gems.

In the morning The Grove of Daphne seemed even more alarmingly enormous than it had in the glimpses she had caught of it at midnight. But her apprehension was ameliorated by the realization that all this was hers. The swimming pool was hers, the palms and the lawn; the enclosing cottages so cleanly painted and inviting all were hers.

Perforce she had to put on the dress in which she had traveled all the way from New York. Recollection that her own suitcase was missing came to her with a shock as she remembered the changing suit-case that was in her possession, and its strange contents. There must have been two identical pieces of airplane baggage when she alighted from the train. This was not impossible, as there must be thousands of those yellow cases with the red stripe. Either she had taken the wrong one or someone preceding her had taken hers and left his own behind.

But the contents of this bag at her feet marked its owner as a person of abnormal habits and character — possibly unpleasant habits and character. It might be most undesirable if its owner came to know that she, Columbine Druggel, had the case in her possession and had examined its contents. She placed it in a corner of her closet and covered it with a spare blanket that she found on the shelf. Then, having bathed and dressed as best she could, she went diffidently down the stairs to the lobby.

"Good morning, Mr. Simpkins," she said. The young man, startled by her sudden appearance, stammered a good morning and stared at her.

"Breakfast," she said sharply. "The dining room," he answered, "does not open until 7:30."

"The dining room," she said, "is undoubtedly for guests. The employees must eat earlier?" "Yes, Miss Druggel. Yes," "I," she informed him, "am, in effect, an employee." Somewhat dubiously he led her to the employees' dining room, where Barbara Green sat over coffee and eggs and toast. Columbine went to her table and seated herself with a curt good morning.

"Good morning, Miss Druggel," answered the hostess. "Why did you not have breakfast served in your room?" "I am not," she said, "accustomed to pampering myself."

A face above a white coat appeared in the door and Miss Green addressed it. "Curt, will you see what Miss Druggel wants for breakfast?" And then, as the boy came to stand beside the table, "Curt, this is your new boss, Miss Druggel."

"Curt is one of our bus boys." "Good morning, Curt. Just get me orange juice and one egg and toast and coffee." Columbine became her stiff, inclement self again, and spoke to Miss Green.

"How many guests can we accommodate?" "A hundred and thirty."

"How many rooms?" "Fifty-two in singles and suites."

"For which we charge?" "From $20 a day for singles to $85 for three-bedroom suites, in the season. We remain open all summer, which most resorts here do not do. Through the hot months our rates are about half."

"How many employees?" "Fifty-five, including 10 in the administrative staff. One to every two and a half guests."

It was apparent that Columbine was appalled. "Will I be expected to mingle with the guests?" "That question told Barbara Green something about this dowdy girl. This Miss Druggel was shy, afraid of people. That might account for her offish manner."

"Your father," said Miss Green, "was very popular with the guests. He knew how to please people. His way with the guests accounted in no small measure for the success of The Grove of Daphne."

"I am amply capable of maintaining discipline among 100 girls under 10 years of age, but I have had no experience in keeping order among 130 adults."

"But, Miss Druggel, a hotel is not a school." "Nonsense," Columbine said sharply. "Unless there is discipline, there will be chaos. Have you no list of rules instructing guests in decorum and behavior?"

"Why, no, Miss Druggel, no." "Then my first duty shall be the preparation of such a code and its distribution."

Miss Green spoke with spirit. "Then," she said, "your second duty, Miss Druggel, will be to bid goodby to your guests." (To Be Continued)

Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Worried over all those predictions about a recession due in 1963? Tired of reading an even greater number of predictions that don't really predict anything at all?

If you've got the idea that almost all economists are afraid to guess, or if they do venture a forecast can't see anything ahead but trouble, take cheer.

A handful of economists for business firms are taking strong stands one way or the other. And a few are saying right out that 1963 should be a good year for the economy as a whole.

The thing they are counting on most is a tax cut. And the ones who feel the strongest that 1963 will be a good year are those who see tax cuts really giving the economy a big boost.

One economist going all out in rejecting the standard practice of stressing uncertainty is Dr. Gordon W. McKinley, vice president of F. W. Dodge Corp., compiler of statistics on the construction industry.

Business will turn up by the second quarter of 1963, McKinley says, and rise rapidly until the end of the year.

Why? Because he expects the new Congress to move quickly to cut taxes across the board and later thoroughly revise the tax structure.

McKinley holds that tax cuts will mean a quick upsurge of consumer spending and of business outlays for future growth. This would guarantee 1963 the upthrust that 1962 has lacked.

McKinley doesn't hold with those who think much of the money accruing to individuals and corporations from lower tax rates would simply go into increased savings accounts or into paying of debts.

"The vigor with which the economy will respond to the reduction in taxes is likely to astound us," he says.

Nor does he believe there are any basic maladjustments today that make a recession inevitable. He cites the fairly modest size of inventories, the absence of any wild consumer credit boom, the soundness of financial institutions, the adequate supply of business credit.

He also points to the fact that the economy is not overburdened with debt. He says the economy is in a "good position" to handle a recession if one comes.

Murdered Wife Then Shot Self

entists from putting it in operation.

Laboratory scientists attempted to fire the mid-course rocket before the battery ran down. But the signal apparently reached the spacecraft too late.

The course correction command, which takes 26 minutes to execute, was sent to Ranger 5 from a tracking station at Johannesburg, South Africa, at 6:29 p.m. PDT.

However, the Johannesburg station lost its signal from Ranger 5 at 6:45 p.m. PDT, an indication the battery had already run down.

It was the third straight failure in the U.S. program to unlock some of the secrets of the moon electronically before sending manned ships to the earth's nearest celestial body.

Ranger 4, launched last April, crash-landed on the moon's back side, but because of a failure of a timing device, did not send back any television pictures.

Ranger 3 missed the moon by 22,000 miles last January because it was going too fast.

Rangers 1 and 2 were only experimental vehicles and were not aimed at the moon.

Officials said Ranger 5, launched from Cape Canaveral, performed well until it got into space. On the trajectory achieved at launch, the spacecraft will miss the moon by approximately 300 miles on the dark, or trailing, edge.

The Ranger 5 was to have arrived in the lunar sky in the early hours of Sunday.

Ranger 5, riding atop the 10-story-high Atlas-Agena B, lifted off its launch pad at one minute before noon. Sending a clasp of thunder rolling across the Cape, the big booster rose on a pillar of flame and disappeared into a low-hanging layer of clouds.

Ranger 5 was supposed to leave the earth's outer limits at 24,500 miles an hour, slow gradually to about 2,150 miles an hour and then pick up speed again under the pull of lunar gravity.

Ranger 5, a mechanical marvel, has a television eye to see with. It has an electronic brain to command it, a radio voice, and instruments which in a way serve as a sense of touch.

No two solar panels are capable of soaking up energy from the sun and converting it into some 150 watts of electricity to keep Ranger 5 functioning.

And it's very clear. It was sterilized before leaving earth to prevent earthly life of any kind from reaching the moon and confusing later study.

The 753-pound explorer has four missions. If it successfully carries them out it will help answer questions man has been asking about the earth's only natural satellite since Galileo made moon-gazing popular five centuries ago.

What is the moon made of? Where did it come from? How did it get its crater-pocked face?

If all goes well in its 70-hour, 231,500 mile voyage, Ranger 5 will begin its principal experiments 65 minutes before crashing on the moon. At 2,600 miles above the surface, it will begin taking and transmitting a picture every 13 seconds to the tracking station at Goldstone, Calif.

These pictures would give scientists the best closeups ever made of the moon. The best available cannot distinguish objects smaller than a city block. Ranger's could pinpoint objects the size of a compact car.

If all goes well, a spectrometer—an instrument capable of sorting out and measuring the intensity of gamma rays—will measure the gamma ray spectrum found on the lunar surface. By comparing this data with the earth's gamma ray spectrum, scientists would have a broad idea whether the moon's surface is similar to the earth's or more like meteoritic material.

A radar altimeter will measure the radar reflection properties of the moon. The results could establish a standard for the calibration of more complex earthbound radar systems used in experiments to determine the makeup of moon's surface.

And finally, if all goes well, a 24-inch beam of wood ball will separate from Ranger about 70,000 feet up in the lunar sky. A braking rocket will slow it down while the rest of Ranger crashes to its death at 6,000 miles an hour. The ball will hit the moon at no more than 150 miles an hour.

Within the ball, in an inner fiberglass sphere, are a seismometer, a radio transmitter, two guns, and a small quantity of water and gas to protect the instruments during landing.

After the ball rolls to a stop, the inner sphere will right itself so that the radio antenna is pointed earthward. Two bullets will pierce the outer shell, permitting the gas to escape. The seismometer, sensitive enough to record a five-pound meteorite hitting the opposite side of the moon, will begin measuring moonquakes and meteor impacts.

Nov. 13—Annual Oyster Supper & Bazaar, Centenary Methodist Church Boy Scouts. Starts 5 p.m.

Nov. 14—Closing out sale, 8 mi. W. of Jacksonville or 2 1/2 mi. S.E. of Chapin, 11 a.m. E. B. Nece & Sons, owners. Middendorf Bros. Aucts.

Nov. 15—Closing out sale, machinery, equipment and livestock, 11 a.m. 18 miles northwest of Woodson. Harry E. Doolin, owner. LeRoy Moss and Roland Erickson, aucts.

Nov. 15—Goose Supper & country store, Lynnville Chris. Ch. Tickets at Long's Pharmacy or 245-2461.

350 Cuban Refugees Reside, Businessmen See Work At Guantanamo Base

Work At Guantanamo Base

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some 350 Cubans who sought asylum at the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo from Fidel Castro's regime have been permitted to reside and work there but not to use it as a point of escape to this country, the Navy says.

The situation is described by the Navy in a letter to Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., in response to an inquiry from him. Keating's office made the letter public today.

In commenting on the letter, Keating protested that "in a misguided attempt to avoid antagonizing Castro, it appears that our consideration of our rights to use the base."

Sharp wrote Keating that since Jan. 1 of this year, 58 Cuban citizens have made their way through Cuban guards to the naval base. "Each of these men," he said, "has been given employment on the base and joined some 300 other Cubans who have taken up permanent residence on the base since the Castro government came to power."

It added that "some of these agitators have managed to elude base security measures and a few have attempted to stow away on outbound ships."

Sharp said the U.S.-Cuban lease agreement on the Guantanamo base is silent on the subject of Cuban nationals departing Cuba from the base.

"However," he added, "the United States has refrained from permitting such travel on grounds that nothing in any treaty has given us a legal basis for establishing Guantanamo as a port of exit for Cuban citizens and this would be an issue in any legal consideration of our rights to use the base."

U. N. Outgrows Its Facilities

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—With 109 members now, and new countries clamoring for admission, the United Nations is faced with the problem of expanding facilities on its site along New York's East River.

Acting Secretary-General U. Thant and his aides, tired of makeshift arrangements for meetings and for feeding of the more than 1,000 delegates during General Assembly sessions, plans to build the assembly to authorize a building program to cost an estimated $8 million.

It would accommodate representatives from 126 countries.

The most ambitious project calls for expanding the conference hall building on the south, back of the towering secretariat building, and provide two more meeting rooms.

It also calls for extending the building northward, back of the General Assembly hall, to provide a restaurant of international prestige, a roomier cafeteria, and a bigger lounge for diplomats.

Rigney Is Named AL Top Pilot

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Rigney, whose Los Angeles Angels astounded the baseball world by finishing third in only their second season in the American League, was named the circuit's 1962 manager of the year Thursday in the annual Associated Press poll.

Rigney received 80 of the 108 votes cast by members of the Baseball Writers Association of America. Sam Mele of the second-place Minnesota Twins was a distant runner-up in the balloting with 25 votes. Ralph Houk of the pennant-winning New York Yankees was third with three votes.

Astute Handler
Rigney, 43, an astute handler of youngsters, had his surprising club in second place as late as Sept. 12 before the Angels dropped to third. They wound up with 36 victories and 76 defeats, 10 games behind the Yanks and just five behind the Twins.

Most of the experts had relegated Los Angeles to a second division position in the pre-season evaluations. In 1961, the Angels' first year in the league, they had surprised with 70 victories and an eighth-place finish.

Bolding down second for most of the 1962 campaign, Los Angeles moved into first place by four percentage points on July 4 after sweeping a doubleheader from Washington. Rigney kept his club in first place for a few days before relinquishing the lead.

Controls Bo
The former Giants' skipper handled his pitching staff skillfully, developing Dean Chance, Ken McBride and Bo Belinsky as starters with Dan Olesinski and Jack Spring proving effective as relievers. Leon Wagner, Lee Thomas and Billy Moran gained confidence at the plate and were Rigney's batting mainstays.

Rockets Still After 1st Win

With a revamped lineup and their best game of the season still in their minds, the Routt Rockets will go against Virginia tonight.

The Rockets were at the best last week against the Triopia Trojans in a 13-7 losing cause, but found an ability to move the ball well under the new leadership of quarterback Danny Newport, playing his first game as field general.

Newport took over the reins and sophomore Leo Carroll was switched to Newport's right end position as the Rockets were pulling for their first win of the season and a major PMSC conference upset.

General Newport Now
"The boys were well pleased with their performance last week, and have been blocking and tackling better this week. We feel we have a chance this week, and could have beaten Triopia last week with a couple of breaks," commented coach John Murray.

"Danny looked real good running the ball club for the first time, and has proven himself a good field general and has the respect of the entire team."

Other than these two changes, the rest of the Rocket lineup will remain the same except for the moving of Chuck Lambert to the center spot.

Virginia is riding the crest of a two game winning streak, dropping their first three games of the season. The Redbirds lost 7-6 to Triopia in the only common opponent of the year.

Coaches Now Reserve On Reserve Question

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The spreading vogue of three-plateau football is receiving a mixed reception from college coaches across the nation.

Most of the coaches questioned in a survey by the Syracuse Herald-Journal agreed the technique was attractive. But its limitation was finding the seasoned manpower to field three first teams.

The developer of the system — Army Coach Paul Dietzel — has no such reservation.

"I care not what course others may choose, but as for me, the starting 33 is here to stay," Dietzel said.

The system employs a unit capable of playing both offensive and defensive ball, plus two units, each of which specializes in either offensive or defensive play.

Summing up the majority view was Penn State's Rip Engle, whose two-plateau Lions were upset by the three-plateau Cadets, 9-6, last Saturday.

He said:
have momentum on their side. Virginia hopes have taken a turn for the better with the possible return of star end, Will Norris, a 6-3 195-pound two year letterman who suffered a broken arm after the Redbirds' first game of the season.

Norris dressed for last week's game, a 33-26 win over Bluffs, and has an outside chance of competing against the Rockets.

Virginia's offense centers around quarterback Dave Jokisch, and halfbacks Jim Brannan and sophomore Rick Smith. Brannan racked up three touchdowns against the Bluejays last week and also boots the extra points.

George utilizes a wing offense with some of his variations picked up while coaching at Rock Island, Alameda and Florida. The Redbirds also own a win over Waverly, and lost to Roodhouse, 7-0, Havana, 20-0, and Triopia.

Must Defeat 2-Year Jinx

Illinois College meets Culver-Stockton this Saturday on the home field. The Blueboys will be going for their fourth victory of the season against one defeat.

IC ran over Elmhurst, 19-6, last week while the Wildcats met defeat playing Principia, 7-6.

If the Culver-Stockton-Principia is any indication, Coach Joe Brooks' Blueboys will be in for another hard fought contest when they play the Wildcats tomorrow. IC and Principia battled to a 14-6 score for three periods two weeks ago before the Indians capitalized on three Blueboy mistakes to win, 33-6.

Ball Control Offense
Coach Brooks appears to be well blessed with several hard running ball carriers this year. Ron Carter, Carrollton; Tom Francis, Franklin; Chauncey Whitaker, Jacksonville; Conrad Noll, Springfield; and Ken Mock, Fox Lake, have been the rushing leaders for the Big Blue.

Carter has carried the pigskin 55 times for a total of 280 net yards. Conrad Noll follows Carter with 232 net yards in 44 attempts. Whitaker has the best rushing average, 6.6 yards per carry. The former JHS footballer has picked up 194 net yards in 29 running plays. Francis has accounted for another 157 yards in 26 carries playing only three games.

The four game cumulative statistical report shows that the Blueboy offense has made 992 net yards in 214 running plays, an average of almost five yards a play.

Defense Holds Them
Jack Cox, Bluffs, and Frank Moriconi, Springfield, lead the IC defensive unit that has held Blueboy opponents to a total of 286 net yards in only 119 rushing plays. This combination of ball control offense and alert defensive action has paid big dividends for Coach Brooks' men so far this season.

The crushing tackles by Frank Rickard, Lincoln, quick pass interceptions by Jack Cox and John McCoy, Mt. Sterling, tackles behind the line of scrimmage by big Gerald Brockhouse, Jacksonville, and Moriconi plus diving fumble recoveries by Gary Duffell, Yorkville; Gary Reichert, Virginia; and Bill Almonette, Afton, Mo., will provide plenty of exciting football when the Big Blue battle the Wildcats tomorrow.

IC will be trying to break a jinx which seems to prevail in Blueboy-Wildcat contests tomorrow. Culver-Stockton has come from behind to defeat the Blueboys in the closing seconds of the last two contests via a field goal on both occasions.

Playing at Canton, Mo., before a large homecoming gathering last year, the Wildcats staged a last ditch march climaxed with an 18 yard field goal to win 16-14 when a field goal sailed through the cross bars with 16 seconds remaining in the game.

Los Angeles Dodgers are in a trading mood, with such stars as Duke Snider and Wally Moon on the available list. But the club won't deal just to be dealing.

"I'm not going to wreck this club in a moment of anger, and I'll not dispose of our nucleus," said General Manager Buzz Bavasi Thursday.

The Dodgers' main objective in strengthening for the 1963 season will be a second or third baseman and possibly a pitcher, Bavasi said.

In the latter case, much depends on the condition of strikeout artist Sandy Koufax and his now renowned number finger, as Manager Walter Alton pointed out in his re-signing ceremony Wednesday.

Bavasi noted that either Snider or Moon might go—not both—because it isn't fair to the others on the team to have two such highly paid athletes riding the bench. Each reportedly earned more than $40,000 this year.

Veterans Davey Spencer and Andy Carey, who were merely adequate at third base, seem headed for other pastures, and catcher John Roseboro, whose hitting was a disappointment, might be expendable.

FRICK SAYS TWELVE TEAMS FORSEEABLE
HONOLULU (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick predicted Thursday "it is inevitable within the foreseeable future that the major leagues will expand to 12 teams each."

Frick, in Hawaii for a 2-day visit en route to Japan, told newsmen 12-team leagues probably would split into divisions playing interlocking schedules. He said this would lead to divisional playoffs to determine who would meet in the World Series.

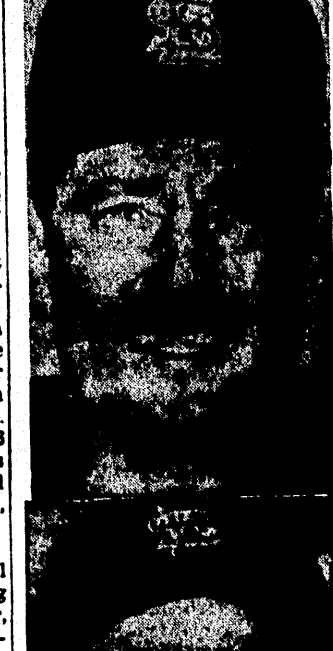

"I can't say what cities would be taken in under an expansion plan," Frick said, "but we are not worried about possible sites."

He declined to elaborate.

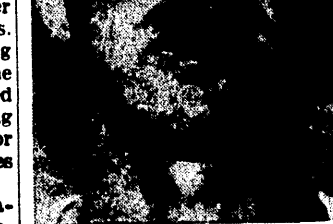

Francis Francis Leads So. Seniors
PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Francis Francis of Berry Island, Bahamas, shot the hottest golf of the week Thursday, three under par, to eliminate Gardner Dickerson of Shelter Island, N.Y., 5 and 4, in the quarter-finals of the North and South Seniors Tournament.

Francis' opponent in Friday's semifinals will be Frank Ross, 68, a West Hartford, Conn., insurance man, who shot par golf in a 4 and 3 victory over Dr. John Mercer of Fitchburg, Mass., runner-up last year.

Running the Triopia ends from a single wing offense, the Bluejays were successful in moving the ball the next time they got their hands on the pigskin and marched down the field.

The Triopia got their offense moving in the second half as fullback Dave Barry bulled for 25 yards on the first play of the third quarter and with Roger Allan getting loose on a 42 yard double reverse scoring laid, pulled within one.

A pass fell in and out of a Triopia receiver's hands on the try for the extra point.

The hosts took life again late in the period when Barry again rambled down to the 15 of the Bluejays, but a 15 yard clipping penalty set the Trojans back where their drive bogged down.

Triopia got another shot at pulling it out with two minutes remaining as they lose ball on the Petersburg 33, but the Bluejays held on four downs and ran the clock.

The win left 18D in sole possession of first place in the PMSC with an unblemished 3-0 mark and Triopia to 2-1.

Highlanders Seek 1st Quincy Cross Country Title Win
MacMurray College's cross-country team will be seeking its first championship of the Quincy College Invitational Cross-Country Meet when the Highlanders enter a 2 annual event on Saturday, October 20.

The Highlanders placed third behind St. Louis University and Loras (Iowa) College in the meet last year.

Both Loras and St. Louis are entered in the meet again this year which will host eight of the area's top cross-country teams.

Also entered is Washington (Mo.) University which won its first two dual meets by sweeping the first five places in both meets.

"Our squad shows better balance than it did last year and this could be our year to win the meet," commented MacMurray Coach Dave Camaleno. "I expect St. Louis and Washington to be the schools to beat," he added.

Much of the Highlanders' performance will depend on the running of Ron Orr of Gary, Ind., who continues his drive to become the number-two man on the MacMurray squad.

Orr finished only seconds behind Bob Head of Springfield, and Bob Collier of Denver, Colo., who tied for third in MacMurray's 23-33 victory over Westminster (Mo.) College on October 13. Collier finished sixth in last year's Quincy meet while Head came in twelfth.

Seeking his fourth individual crown of the season will be sophomore Jim Marler of Hobart, Ind. Marler finished third in the meet last year.

The Highlanders' next home match will be Saturday, Oct. 27, when they will host Westminster (Mo.) and Harris Teachers (Mo.) in a triangular meet.

Petersburg Pulls Upset In 7-6 Win

ARENSVILLE — Petersburg held off two Triopia drives in their own territory in the waning minutes of the game Thursday evening to knock the Trojans from the ranks of the unbeaten in the PMSC conference with a 7-6 decision at Arensville.

The deciding margin came when a Triopia try for the extra point failed after matching a second half Petersburg touchdown early in the fourth quarter.

A spirited Bluejay backfield caught fire in the second half and rolled out over 100 yards, and picked up the winning touchdown after marching down the field on the second half opening kickoff.

Defensive Standstill
The two clubs fought to a standstill in the defensive first half, with the Bluejays pushing the hosts back on the long range toe of punter Dave Thomas.

Petersburg got a break when they recovered a Triopia fumble on the Trojan 12 yard line but had a last minute field goal fall short of its mark. Again with seconds remaining in the half, an intercepted pass gave them the ball on the 25 yard marker and Gene Dowell passed to Thomas down to the nine before the Trojans held on the final two downs.

The Bluejays turned Dowell, Terry Wallace and Dick Cheney loose early in the second half and the trio carried the winners the length of the field following the kickoff. Dowell crashed over from the one yard stripe and Larry Smith booted the winning margin on the PAT.

Lace Triopia Ends
Running their big gainers around the Triopia ends from a single wing offense, the Bluejays were successful in moving the ball the next time they got their hands on the pigskin and marched down the field.

The Triopia got their offense moving in the second half as fullback Dave Barry bulled for 25 yards on the first play of the third quarter and with Roger Allan getting loose on a 42 yard double reverse scoring laid, pulled within one.

A pass fell in and out of a Triopia receiver's hands on the try for the extra point.

The hosts took life again late in the period when Barry again rambled down to the 15 of the Bluejays, but a 15 yard clipping penalty set the Trojans back where their drive bogged down.

Triopia got another shot at pulling it out with two minutes remaining as they lose ball on the Petersburg 33, but the Bluejays held on four downs and ran the clock.

The win left 18D in sole possession of first place in the PMSC with an unblemished 3-0 mark and Triopia to 2-1.

Mac Booters Host Lake Forest Team
MacMurray College's soccer team will host Lake Forest College on Saturday, Oct. 20.

The Highlanders will be out to get revenge for last season's 4-2 defeat in Lake Forest. In that game MacMurray gained 18 shots while Lake Forest shot 23 times.

Goalie Dick Trout of Springfield had 18 saves in the game last year. He will start at the same position when the Highlanders take the field Saturday.

The Highlander defense has continued its fine defensive play and should be a highlight of the game on Saturday. Hard-kicking fullback Wayne Mansfield of Deep River, Conn., will be called on again to tighten this defense.

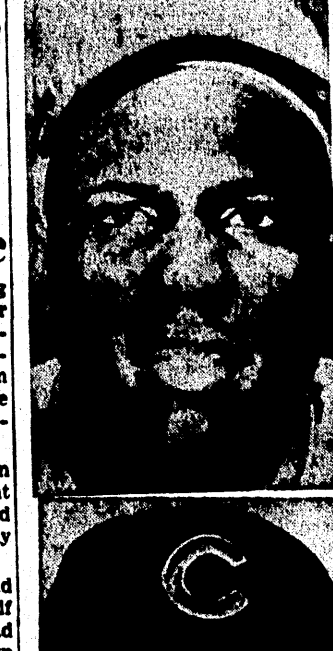

Mansfield will be aided by Sandy Swan of Lake Forest, and Rob Williams of Warsaw, N.Y.

Halfback Dick Flynn of Canton is a doubtful starter due to a sprained ankle suffered in the Highlanders' 1-1 tie with Grinnell College. If he is unable to start he probably will be replaced by Dave Bucher of Bradford, Bucher, although a newcomer to the squad, saw considerable action in the Grinnell game.

Back to duplicate his feat of two goals against Lake Forest last year, is Bob Cohoon of Fair Lawn, N.J. Adding balance to the offensive attack will be Scott Enns of Natrona Heights, Pa., and wing Jorg Peters of Frankfurt, Germany. All three men played outstanding games in the tie with undefeated Grinnell College.

Game time Saturday is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. on the Beecher Street soccer field.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Mantle, the hard-hitting New York Yankees center fielder, got only a double and two singles in 25 official trips at bat during the World Series. But he is the American League's slugging king for 1962.

During the regular season Mantle had 15 doubles, 1 triple and 30 home runs among 121 hits in 377 official trips. This production enabled him to win his fourth loop slugging title.

Figures compiled by The Associated Press showed Thursday that Mantle finished with a .605 average while Frank Robinson of the Cincinnati Reds captured his third consecutive National League crown with a .624 mark. Slugging averages are based on total bases accumulated on all hits and official times at bat.

Only Names Same
Mantle also won the title in 1961 with 6.87. Robinson paced his circuit with .613 the same year. The Yankee star's other victories were in 1955 and 1956.

Robinson piled up 380 total bases in 609 at bats the past season. He had 51 doubles, 2 triples and 39 homers among 208 hits. Hank Aaron of Milwaukee was second with a .618 average. The veteran outfielder had 368 total bases in 592 tries, getting 28 doubles, 61 triples, and 45 home runs among 191 hits.

Mays Listed Third
Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants, the league's home run king with 49, was third in slugging with .615. His extra-base output also included 36 doubles and 8 total bases in the majors, 382.

Al Kaline of Detroit was the American League runner-up. The outfielder had 236 total bases in 398 official times at bat for a .593 rate. He had 121 hits, including 16 doubles, 6 triples and 29 home runs.

Harmon Killebrew of the Minnesota Twins, the circuit's home run champion with 48, was third in the slugging competition with .546.

Waverly Handed 47-25 Pasting
WAVERLY — Northwestern's Wildcats pounded Waverly 47-25 Thursday night at Waverly in a MSM conference contest that saw Joe Lovelless score twice and set up a third.

Lovelless' scoring plays covered for 15 and hit White for a 48 yard passing combination for the third score in the first period.

The Wildcats scored twice in the second quarter, using runs of six and 12 yards by Ralston and Jesse for their counters.

Oxley scored two quick tackles in the fourth frame for the Wildcats and White added the extra points on a kick.

Waverly picked up in the third canto with Steve Stults traveling 51 yards for the first Scottie score and scored again on an intercepted pass, good for 25 yards and a 33-20 score.

Stults scored opening the fourth frame on a 21 yard jaunt and Pat Green went into paydirt from four yards away to end the scoring.

Gromyko Calls Talk With Kennedy About Berlin Issue Useful

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko said Thursday night he had a "useful" talk with President Kennedy about the Berlin issue, but he declined to say whether Premier Khrushchev will come to the United States.

Gromyko gave this word to newsmen after a 2 1/4-hour meeting with Kennedy at the White House starting in late afternoon.

Firm Must Rehire Employees, Make Pay Losses Good

WASHINGTON (AP)—A big textile chain that shut down a South Carolina mill six years ago when its workers were organized by a union was ordered Thursday to rehire the laid-off workers and make good their pay losses.

The costs involved in the 3-2 decision by the National Labor Relations Board could run into millions of dollars for Deering-Miliken Inc., one of the nation's largest textile combines. More than 500 workers are involved.

The board majority steered clear of directing Deering-Miliken to reopen its Darlington, S.C., affiliate, formerly the Darlington Mill Co., but the AFL-CIO Textile Workers Union of America promptly asked the appeals court here to go further than the NLRB and require just that.

Instead of reopening the plant, the NLRB majority directed the firm to give workers displaced by the Darlington mill closing a chance to take on comparable jobs at other nearby Deering-Miliken mills. The chain operates 29 mills in all.

Deering-Miliken filed an appeal at Richmond, Va., denying that it had closed the Darlington plant to avoid dealing with the union after the plant's workers voted 256 to 248 in September 1956 for the union.

This was the one thing on which the five NLRB members were unanimous — that the company closed the plant to retaliate against the employees for voting for the union. The dissenters differed only on the matter of punishment. One, Philip Ray Rogers, held there could be none because he said any firm may legally quit business any time it wants.

The majority, led by chairman Frank W. McCulloch, ruled that the Deering-Miliken parent firm was a common employer with the defunct Darlington firm and therefore legally responsible for the plight of the discharged workers. The majority said the Darlington plant closure was "a classic example" of violating the labor law by discharging workers for engaging in their protected activities of organizing and operating labor unions.

The amount due the employees, provided the NLRB decision is upheld in the courts, is in doubt. The more than 500 workers averaged about $2,300 each in regular annual earnings. On that basis the Deering-Miliken bill could total more than $7 million. Any amounts the workers earned since the plant closed are deductible and this is bound to reduce the total considerably.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has moved some of its fastest and most heavily armed Navy jet fighters within four minutes flying time of Cuba.

A Defense Department spokesman said Thursday a squadron of about 12 F4B Phantom 2 fighters was ordered to Key West, Fla. on Oct. 6, three days after Congress was told of a buildup of MIG jets in Cuba.

In other U.S.-Cuban developments:

1. The White House said plans are being worked out for a U.S. quarantine on Cuban shipping but the details probably won't be ready for announcement this week.

2. The Navy said its Guantanamo base in Cuba is sheltering about 350 Cubans who fled from Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime but is not allowing them to leave the island. Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., called this "a misguided attempt to avoid antagonizing Castro" and said the escapees should be allowed to leave Cuba.

News of the quiet shifting of Navy jet fighters to the southernmost tip of Florida was related by the Defense Department spokesman to a report by Undersecretary of State George W. Ball on growing MIG strength in Cuba. Ball told Congress that Castro eventually will have probably 25 to 30 of the most modern Soviet-built MIG jets which normally carry air-to-air missiles. Already Cuba was believed to have one advanced MIG21, with more probably being assembled, plus about 60 older jets, Ball said.

The 1,400-mile-an-hour F4B Phantom is rated the Navy's fastest, highest-flying and longest-range fighter. It also has the greatest firepower of any Navy fighter, mounting both the Sparrow and Sidewinder missiles which can be used to knock down other high-speed aircraft.

The Phantoms were moved from Oceana Naval Air Station near Norfolk to Key West, where they are only about 90 miles from Cuba. The Pentagon spokesman said this was the only unit moved into position facing Cuba, as far as he knows, and does not signal other shifts.

The United States has powerful air and fleet elements based throughout the Caribbean. Keating's office made public a letter from Vice Adm. U.S.G. Sharp, deputy chief of naval operations for plans and policy, who reported on the escaped Cubans in Guantanamo.

Sharp, replying to an inquiry from Keating, said that since last Jan. 1, 58 Cubans have made their way through Cuban guards into the naval base, where they have taken up permanent residence there since Castro came to power.

They had been allowed to live and work on the base, Sharp said, but have not been permitted to leave the island because, "Nothing in any treaty has given us a legal basis for establishing Guantanamo as a port of exit for Cuban citizens and this would be an issue in any legal consideration of our rights to use the base."

He said a few of the Cubans have become agitators referring to themselves as "political refugees" and have tried to stow away on outbound ships. Keating said, "It is ridiculous for the United States to be telling these refugees from Castro's tyranny, 'Either work for the Navy or go back and face the music.'"

There are about 800 other Cubans who live and work on the base during the week but who normally return to their homes over weekends.

Illinois Power, IBEW Local Settle Dispute

DECATUR, Ill. (AP)—An amicable agreement was reached Thursday in the Illinois Power Co. electrical workers union dispute which flared into a wildcat dispute Monday and Tuesday.

About 200 members of Local 51, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, struck against the utility Monday in a dispute over non-Local 51 laborers' working on a gas main project from Decatur to Macon. A company spokesman said the local agreed Thursday to abide by an inter-union pact providing for non-Local 51 workers on such jobs.

Seventy IBEW members at Bloomington and 140 at Danville walked off their jobs in a sympathy move. All the men were back at work late Tuesday, however. The union termed the walk-out illegal, although it did represent the strikers at negotiations Thursday.

The local's business manager, W.R. Boyd of Springfield, said a satisfactory agreement was reached with the I.P.C. A company spokesman said he reminded the union of a 20-year-old inter-union agreement which approved non-IBEW laborers on such jobs.

De Gaulle To Quit If Vote On Constitution Revision Is 'No'

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle spelled it out plain and clear Thursday: Unless he gets what he wants in the Oct. 28 referendum on the presidency — and by a big vote — he will resign and never return to French political life.

He could lose. The referendum is to decide whether to elect future French presidents by popular vote, canceling the present system of elections by a sort of electoral college of 80,000 persons.

De Gaulle, stern and lofty as always, told a nationwide television and radio audience: "If your response is 'no' or even if the majority of 'yes' votes is weak, mediocre, doubtful, it is clearly evident that my task will be ended at once and without return, because what could I do afterward without the warm confidence of the nation?"

He did not fix any exact percentage he would consider satisfactory.

In each of the three referendums De Gaulle has previously called since he returned to power in 1958, he implied a similar threat to withdraw to his country home if defeated. But never before has he encountered so much opposition from political parties.

This time it is an all-out fight between the old-line parties and De Gaulle.

On Jan. 8, 1961, when De Gaulle asked for national backing for his mode of action in settling the Algerian problem, he got 75.2 percent approval in the voting. But this amounted to only 55.9 percent of the registered voters.

At that time, only the Communists and diehard right-wingers recommended a no vote. In the Oct. 28 vote, these same groups are still opposed and have been joined by the Independent Peasant party, Socialists, Radical Socialists and a large part of the leftist Catholic Popular Republican Movement. Only the Gaullist Union for a New Republic is calling for a yes vote.

The issue has almost become lost in the uproar over De Gaulle's methods and his threat to step aside.

De Gaulle insists that future presidents will need a clear mandate directly from the people. He pleads that the change in the constitution is urgent because of the threats on his life.

But the old parties are crying that De Gaulle is flagrantly violating his own constitution in calling a referendum for the revision. They protest that the constitution can be revised only through reference to Parliament. Most legal experts think so too.

Bishop Declares Home Still Top Guiding Force

CHICAGO (AP)—"When all is said about the forces that influence a child's life, the home is still at the top of the list," according to a Methodist bishop.

Bishop Hazen G. Werner of Columbus, Ohio, told the fourth National Methodist Family Life Conference today.

"You can build more church buildings, acquire more members, expand your organization and programs, but Christianity itself will fall if it fails to prevail in the home."

He said the church may be the place where religion is taught, but it is the home where it must be lived. He said 83 per cent of a child's time is spent in his home.

"We must condition our children in our homes to the priority of the spiritual," he said.

Bishop Werner said basic to familial love is respect. "I have no hesitancy in saying that respect is the cornerstone of successful marriage and family life."

But he added, "To treat a child with respect does not mean an absence of discipline or the presence of unlimited permissiveness."

He said respect for a child means treating him as a person.
